correspondent writing from Las Vegas, N. M., says: The sanitary climate of New Mexico, especially in all forms of pulmonary diseases, as well as those arising from malaris, forers, chills and kindred ailments, is no longer questioned by persons who are informed. Half the population of this town, it is claimed, consists of peo-ple who have been radically cored of ng afflictions and afterwards chosen the place for their permanent home. The climate makes this part of the territory the natural sanitarium of the world. The altitude, 6,500 feet, lifts one into an atmosphere, so pure and dry, so rare and highly charged with ozone and electricity, that, taken with the resinous aroma that flows down from the pine clad mountains near by, a comuntion of atmospheric ingredients is formed which constitutes both a healing balm, and a gentle restoring tonle to the irritated and diseased lungs. Sudden extremes of heat and cold are unknown. There is an entire absence of dark and depressing days, of malaria, of all sorts of pests, while Indian summer reigns supreme for full 300 days in the year. Consumptives feel at once the invigorating, life-giving power of the climate; asth-matics breath with perfect freedom, while chills and fevers promptly leave their victims for a more congenial This is equally true of all diseases that originate in malaria. The writer is not running a sanitarium in New Mexico, but is one to whom the elimate has brought the bloom of realth when the grave seemed more imminent. The climate is the real city of refuge to large classes of unforturates. What a boon a knowledge of this might be to the thousands of weakly, ed children, whose pa eats could afford to send them to one of the really excellent schools in Las Yegan They could pursue their studies there and at the same time build up a of lungs and a physical syste timt would defy the rigors of any sub-

Don't Blame the Cook

If a baking powder is not uniform in strength, so that the same quantity will always do the same work, no one can know how to use it, and uniformly good, light food cannot be produced with it.

All baking powders except Royal, because improperly compounded and made from inferior materials, lose their strength quickly when the can is opened for use. At subsequent bakings there will be noticed a falling off in strength. The food is heavy, and the flour, eggs and butter wasted.

It is always the case that the consumer suffers in pocket, if not in health, by accepting any substitute for the Royal Baking Powder. The Royal is the embodiment of all the excellence that it is possible to attain in an absolutely pure powder. It is always strictly reliable. It is not only more economical because of its greater strength, but will retain its full leavening power, which no other powder will, until used, and make more wholesome food.
